

Over 35 million Americans move each year. While only a small percentage of movers experience mover fraud, it is a reality.

Interstate movers are subject to federal regulations which include registering with FMCSA. Be aware of the same signs used to identify potential traffickers.

If you have reason to suspect moving fraud is involved, contact a MCSAP officer.

MOVING FRAUD

Criminals make use of interstate highways to traffic people, drugs, and weapons.

Although interdiction of these types of operations requires specialized training, pay close attention to the vehicle, the driver, and the passengers during a traffic stop to observe indicators of potential criminal activity.

Vehicle

Make note of misspelled, incomplete, or unprofessional markings, as well as a lack of seals on the trailer.

Driver

Pay attention to the driver's actions and behavior, just as you would during a normal traffic stop.

Passengers

Question the presence of any passengers (large truck only).

If you suspect criminal activity, contact a MCSAP officer.
